

CUI Roundtable Breakfast Seminar:

Is the new plan helping to build a better city? The second annual report card from Toronto's chief planner

Toronto, December 5, 2005 – As developers, citizen groups, politicians and city staff learn to live with Toronto's new – but still not officially legal – official plan, it is clear that expectations for intensification are a “work in progress.” Many questions remain. Why do developers insist on interpreting “intensification” as a license to propose very tall buildings in inappropriate locations? What are the prospects for introducing design review? Will there be good news on the waterfront any time soon? Join us on December 8 when Ted Tyndorf, Toronto's chief planner, gives us his second annual report card on the challenge of achieving his vision for Toronto.

WHAT: The Canadian Urban Institute's Roundtable Breakfast Series offers informal debates on the leading urban issues of the day.
